

Sci-Fi PC-MMO 'AD2460' Continues To Reinvent The Universe With Its Compelling Features & Continuous Updates

Oslo, Norway, February 17th 2017: Indie game developer and MMO specialist Fifth Season are encouraging all MMO and Sci-Fi fans to tryout the newest version of their exciting free-to-play MMO, AD2460. Launched in 2014, and currently in its seventh update, AD2460 takes places in a distant future and revolves around a race for universal resources. Your task is to take control of your homeworld and work to develop its technologies, facilities and military power in order to secure raw materials to improve your position in the universe. As you play, you will need to work together with other players in order to better protect your interests and grow.

Fifth Season is no stranger to cool MMOs. They are the same team who released the massively popular Planetarion MMO in 2001, a game that at its peak had 180.000 players, an impressive number for its time. As part of its continued growth, AD2460 recently changed from a perpetual to cycle-based or round-based game. Work together with other players to develop homeworlds, form alliances and fight for precious resources. Enjoy visual combats, single-player content and other cool features with plenty of customization and options. Great features and new content will update the game on a regular basis with the help and support of its growing community of loyal fans. Fifth Season is more than interested in feedback and suggestions on how to create the ultimate Sci-Fi gameplay experience.

Tryout AD2460 today: <http://www.ad2460.com/>
