

Action-Packed First-Person Shooter 'Dead Effect 2 VR' Updated To Include Awesome New Multiplayer Modes

San Francisco, CA, July 19th 2017: Indie game developer BadFly Interactive is proud to announce a major update to Dead Effect 2 VR, their critically acclaimed first-person shooter available for HTC Vive and Oculus Rift. Recreated from the ground-up with VR-optimized controls, weapon dual-wielding and improved weapon models for a truly terrifying VR horror experience, the game was designed to scare the bejeezus out of its players. The new update brings fantastic new features to an already action-packed game and includes Co-Op Multiplayer, PVP Multiplayer, five new story missions, bug fixes and so much more!

Dead Effect 2 VR is set aboard a colony spaceship where things have gone disastrously wrong. Players awake from cryostasis to discover that a virus has broken out on the ship. All their crewmates have been turned into flesh-eating creatures who roam the corridors looking for their next meal. Determined to open up a can of whoop-ass on the zombie hordes, the player's mission is simple - seize control of the monster-infested ship, uncover its dark secrets and make it out in one piece.

Dead Effect 2 VR offers more than ten hours of single-player campaign content in addition to its new multiplayer features. To gamers looking for more combat and loot, there are four additional game modes - Biohazard, Survival, Lone Wolf and Infestation. Check out the cool new features by viewing the full change-log from here:
